Proposed Gift to Local Library 25 Years Ago Never Carried Out

Twenty-five years ago this week Los Angeles newspapers carried a story about the discovery of a rare book containing early history of California and how that volume was going to be presented to the Torrance public library—just then being founded.

However, something must have prevented that gift because a diligent search and a survey of old library records failed this week to uncover the book, according to Mrs. Dorothy Jamieson, librarian.

The hunt for the volume began after a Los Angeles newspaper published this story in its "25 Years Ago Today" column.

"After lying neglected on a shelf in the library of the owner 60 years, a volume which contains early history of California has just come to light in Hillsboro, Ill. It was discovered by its owner, A. A. Cress, and sent to Thomas D. Campbell, head of the Los Angeles firm of that name, who will present it to the public library at Torrance. The history was prepared by Lieut. R. S. Williamson, U.S.A., under the title of 'Explorations in California for Railroad Routes.' Between its musty covers is a fund of descriptive matter that awakens the liveliest interest in the minds of old-timers. The date of the book's publication is 1853, or 20 years before the coming of California's first railroad."

"I don't believe Mr. Campbell carried out his intention to give the library the book because our records are most complete and fail to list or mention any such presentation," Mrs. Jamieson said. "We would appreciate having such a book, tho."
